Forested India Biodiversity Farm

An ecological research and learning base

An 8-acre rewilded space adjoining Kudremukh National Park, set in a lush rainforest valley nourished by a perennial stream.

- We maintain the existing crops organically.
- Naturally grown forest trees are protected.
 - Over half the land is restored as forest to support biodiversity.

Our farm also forms the base for research and education.

Jungle School

Learn from the forest through hands-on, immersive experiences.

Child of the Wild

Three days

Safe and engaging forest learning and adventure program for children of age
8 to 12 years.

(Customizable for family of 4-6)

Highlights

Guided & safe rainforest explorations

- Exciting day jungle hikes & stream walks
- Night walks around the camp to see nocturnal species activity
- Camping in the rainforest with jungle stories around bonfire
- Fun and learn sessions on natural history

Founders and Facilitators

Forested India is led by Harshita & Dhiraj

With a shared vision to establish a sanctuary for threatened species, a haven where habitats are safeguarded to allow native flora and fauna to flourish, the primary mission centers forest restoration.

Dhiraj is an ecologist and conservation educator with over 15 years of field experience across India's various ecosystems.

Harshita is a molecular biologist and a nature explorer dedicated to inspiring more women to engage with the conservation sciences.

Please Note

This is not a resort but a conservation camp.

We follow simple, mindful living here, where everyone helps maintain cleanliness, serves their own food and washes their dishes after meals. Everything else is lovingly taken care of. Please feel at home and treat the space with the same care and respect.

The camp offers tented accommodation on a double-sharing basis, with modern toilets, running water, and solar-powered electricity and WiFi connectivity to ensure basic comforts.

Program Fees

₹ 5250 per child

₹ 8550 per accompanying parent

Includes: Local transportation
